tees. The stringent action of the Bank proves that the presure for money in London must be almost upparalised. The numerous and heavy failures must however, the pressure that the pressure that issues the demand for money, and releave the pressure for those who are undoubtedly solvent.

The Committee of the City of Hartford publish is mother column their statement in regard to the Middlebow Railroad, in reply to the recent report put forth by the friends of that Road. The Committee state they been an disposition to oppose the building of the Road, but object to the conclusion of the Engineer that the bridging of the Connecticut would be harmless to the navigation of that river. The Committee say that eight of the nine members of the Legislature Committee of the last Legislature coincided in the opinion that the bridge would "materially and seriously contract and injure the navigation of the river, and that the House by a vote of 120 to 83 reposited that clause of the charter giving the right to build the bridge. The repeat was lost in the Senate by one vote. The Committee state that tomage to the amount of 400,000 tons must pass the bridge annually, making an average of ten or resire passage per day in the business season, and they are the things annually, making an average of ten or serving passage per day in the business season, and they are the things of the theory of the Western Railroid bas at Albany. The terry, they argue, would cause a delay of only fitteen minutes. Another application for the all of the passage in the receipts of the Western Railroid bas at Albany.
